

Privacy | Policy

When you trust us with your personal information, you expect us to protect it and keep it safe.

We take this responsibility seriously and we are bound by the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) ('Privacy Act'). We will protect your personal information in accordance with the Australian Privacy Principles and other applicable laws, such as the Spam Act 2007 (Cth) ('Privacy Laws'). These principles govern how we can collect, use, hold, and disclose your personal information and ensure the quality and security of your personal information.

If you would like more information about how we protect your privacy, please contact us.

About this policy

This Privacy Policy explains how we manage your personal information. We may provide more details on how we manage your personal information when we collect your personal information.

What is personal information?

Personal information includes any information or opinion, about an identified individual or an individual who can be reasonably identified from their information.

What kinds of personal information do we collect and hold?

As part of building our relationship and understanding of you and your personal circumstances to provide you personalised advice, we need to collect personal information. The personal information we are likely to collect, and hold includes:

- Your name, address and contact details
- Your date of birth, gender and tax residency
- Details about members of your family and related entities
- Your occupation, employer and educational qualifications
- Government identifiers such as your tax file number, Centrelink identifier, director identification number, identification document numbers and photographs
- Details about your current and/or future financial circumstances, including assets, liabilities, income and expenses, bank details, goals and strategies, risk tolerance, insurance and estate planning arrangements
- Recordings of our discussions either in audio or video format through telephone (landline or mobile services) or digital (e.g. Google Meet) means, with your consent
- Your signature either in hard copy or digitally

The information that we seek to collect about you will depend on the products or services that we provide.

When we communicate with you via telephone services (landline or mobile), in electronic format, email, through our Client Portal, digitally or via social media platforms, we may keep records of your communication with us, acknowledgements, signatures (including digital), video and or audio through audio and/or video conferencing platform recordings (where you verbally consent).

If you apply for insurance, we may collect information about what is being insured, the beneficiaries along with your health and financial situation, depending on the type of insurance.

Where we arrange finance or credit on your behalf, in addition we may ask for information about your finance needs, in history borrowing capacity, council rate notices, contracts of sale and property insurance.

Throughout the life of your product or service, we may collect and hold additional personal information about you. This could include transaction information or making a record of queries or complaints you make and, if you make an insurance claim, collecting additional information to assess the claim.

The collection of sensitive information is restricted by the Privacy Act. This includes information about your religion, racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, criminal record and sexual orientation. It also includes health information and biometric information.

Generally, we only collect this sort of information if it is necessary to provide you with a specific product or service and you have consented to that collection. For example, we may collect health information about you to process a claim under an insurance policy or collect voice biometric information to verify your identity or authorise transactions.

When we communicate with you in electronic format, via email, our client portal, social media platforms, we may keep records of your communication with us. These records may extend to acknowledgements, signatures (including digital), video and audio through video conferencing platform recordings (obtained with your separate consent).

Do I have to provide you my full information?

You have the right to remain anonymous and or not to provide us with any or all of your personal information. However, we specialise in providing personal financial advice and developing strategies that consider your personal circumstances, objectives and needs. Where we do not have the necessary information to ensure our advice is in your best interests, for example if it is inaccurate or incomplete, we may not be able to provide you with advice and or services and the advice may not be appropriate given your full needs and circumstances. Where you provide limited information, we will make you aware of any limitations or risks we can identify given any limited advice we may provide.

Why do we collect, hold, use and disclose personal information?

We collect, use, hold, and disclose personal information to provide you with products and services . This includes:

- Checking whether you are eligible for the product or service
- Assisting you where online applications
- Providing the product or service
- Managing the product or service, such as invoicing or client surveys.
- Assisting you with your questions and requests
- Communicating with you
- Managing fraud and security risks (including using your mobile phone number and any other relevant identifier for two-factor authentication purposes)

We may also use your information to comply with legislative or regulatory requirements in any jurisdiction, prevent fraud, crime or other activity that may cause harm in relation to our products or services and to help us run our business.

We may also use your information to internally help us improve our services with you.

How do we collect personal information?

We collect most personal information directly from you. For example, we will collect your personal information when you apply for or use a product and/or service, or talk to us in person or on the phone.

We also collect information from you electronically. For instance, when you visit our website or if you send us electronic correspondence (see "Do we collect personal information electronically?").

Sometimes we collect personal information about you from other people or organisations. This may happen without your direct involvement. For instance, we may collect personal information about you from:

- Publicly available sources of information, such as public registers
- Your representatives (including your legal advisor, accountant, mortgage broker, executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or attorney)
- Your employer
- Other organisations, who jointly with us, provide products or services to you
- Commercial information service providers, such as companies that provide fraud prevention reports
- Insurers, re-insurers and health care providers.
- Banks, financial institutions, mortgage intermediaries, and other financial product providers;
- Electronic sources, such as you visiting our website and or accessing our client portal.

What laws require or authorise us to collect personal information?

We are required or authorised to collect:

- Certain identification information about you as outlined in the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act 2006 (Cth) and Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Rules Instrument 2007 (No. 1)
- Your Tax File Number, if you choose to provide it as specified in the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 (Cth)
- Certain information in relation to your application if you have applied for insurance as required by the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (Cth).

How do we hold personal information?

We have implemented security measures on all computers, programs and mobile devices accessing our IT systems and data backups. We have controlled access to our principal place of business, secure paper files, provide employee training and clauses in employee and contractor agreements regarding confidentiality and destroying and de-identifying data when it is no longer required or inadvertently provided by a third party.

Unfortunately, the transmission and storage of any data, including your personal information, over the internet or within cloud-based storage systems may not be completely secure. Whilst we will endeavour to protect your personal information, it is possible that third parties, outside our control, may be able to access, obtain or intercept transmissions or private communications without our knowledge or consent. As a result, we cannot ensure the security of data, and any transmissions or electronic communications between us knowing this risk. Just as we take reasonable steps to secure all computing devices used in connection with our website, software, system and services, we recommend you do the same and ensure any internet accessible storage or portable devices, such as your mobile phone are secure.

If you have reason to believe that your interaction with us is no longer secure, for example, if you fear the security of any account, please change your passwords and contact us immediately.

What is a Notifiable Data Breach?

The Privacy Act includes a Notifiable Data Breaches (NDB) scheme, which requires us to notify you and the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC) of certain breaches likely to cause harm and recommend steps you can take to limit the impacts of a breach (for example, a password change).

If we believe there has been a data breach that impacts your personal information and creates a likely risk of serious harm, we will notify you and the OAIC as soon as practicable and keep in close contact with you about the nature of the breach, the steps we are taking and what you can do to reduce the impacts to your privacy.

Who do we disclose your personal information to, and why?

We may provide personal information about our clients to organisations outside of SW Wealth and SW Australia. To protect personal information, we require our service providers comply with the Privacy Act. We only authorise our service providers to use or disclose your personal information for the specific role we ask them to perform.
